Abstract

Is it challenging for you to get your students engaged into speaking activities in your English class? Do you want your students just to learn English or you want them to enjoy while improving their communication skills in a motivating way? Wouldn't your students love to show their improvement to their families and friends?

These were some of the challenges that we, a group of in-service English primary teachers, have faced at one point or another in our classrooms. As caring is sharing, we have prepared a selection of activities that we hope they can be as useful for you as they are for us. Be ready to try them while you are having fun!

In this workshop you will engage yourself in the challenging adventure of learning different ways of enhancing communication in the classroom using digital and non-digital tools. All the tasks we will present have been already implemented in our classrooms with excellent results.

Key words: oral tasks, primary students, speaking, digital tools.
