Plenary Session “Tribute to John Goldthorpe”

20 May, 16:15 to 18:00 – Auditorium (Paraninfo)

Chair: Mike Hout (New York University)

Michelle Jackson “A pioneer of sociological science”.

Michelle Jackson is an Associate Professor of Sociology at Stanford University. Her research focuses on how socioeconomic background shapes life chances, with a particular emphasis on the persistence of inequality in late industrial societies. Her work includes both theoretical and empirical studies, analyzing educational systems and socioeconomic inequality across a variety of countries. In her recent book, The Division of Rationalized Labor, she uses historical, archival, and statistical data to argue that the division of labor has unfolded in ways quite unpredicted by classical theory.

Louis-André Vallet “My tribute to John: How I have been accompanied by John Goldthorpe’s work during my PhD, then academic career, beginning in 1980”

Louis-André Vallet is Emeritus Research Professor of the French National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS) and works in Sorbonne University at the GEMASS – Groupe d’Étude des Méthodes de l’Analyse Sociologique de la Sorbonne. He is also an Emeritus Fellow of the European Academy of Sociology. He was Chief Editor of the Revue française de sociologie between 2014 and 2020 and served on the boards of several journals, notably Acta Sociologica, Économie et Statistique, European Sociological Review, and Social Forces. His first RC28 Conference was in Tel Aviv in 1997. He is currently a member of the Conseil Scientifique de l’Éducation Nationale in France.
